(b) As mentioned above the Indian National Bibliography (English) is five years behind.

In the case of most of the language bibliographies there are one to two decades behind.

(c) To over come the backlog, the publication of INB has been computerised and work for creation of INB data has been started. Software customisation is in the final stages. All Indian language Divisions are integrated through GIST terminals to enable instant translation. The manuscripts for printing backlog of volumes fo 1994 to 97 has already been assigned to Educational Consultants India Ltd., a Government of India enterprise.
